Launch Waste Paper Collection Drive In Mokena

Mayor Harry F. Mall of Mokena has issued the following statement regarding paper salvage:

Do not throw this newspaper away when you have read it! Save it!

Old newspapers, magazines, card board boxes and wastebasket contents are urgently needed for war materials and will be collected from every curb in the city at a special collection Jan. 15. Housewives are asked to follow these instructions preparatory to the collection:

1. Fold all newspapers flat and tie in bundles about 12 inches high.
2. Tie the magazines and books into bundles 18 inches high.
3. Flatten corrugated and cardboard boxes and tie in bundles 12 inches high.
4. Pack wastepaper contents in boxes or bags and tie in bundles.
5. Place all bundles on the curb before your home early in the morning Jan. 15.

SISTER OF MARTIN MUEHLER MOKENA DIES IN JOLIET

Mrs. Freda Melchiorrie, aged 52 years, sister of Martin Muehler of Mokena, died in St. Joseph's hospital, Joliet, December 28. The funeral was held at the Wunderlich funeral home in Joliet.

FORMER MOKENA PASTOR PREACHES TO 5000 NAZI WAR PRISONERS

Rev. W. J. Geffert, former pastor of the Immanuel Lutheran church in Mokena, now located at Kingfisher, Oklahoma, preaches to 5,000 Nazi war prisoners in a war prison camp near Kingfisher.

MOKENA BANK PAYS HIGHEST DIVIDEND OF ANY RURAL WILL COUNTY BANK

When the Mokena State Bank declared an 8 per cent dividend, they set the record in Will County, no other rural bank in the county coming up to this. The next highest was the New Lenox and Frankfort State Banks who each declared a 6 per cent dividend. The annual stockholders meeting of the Mokena State Bank will be held next Wednesday.

NEW LENOX MAN HURT WHEN HAND GETS CAUGHT IN COAL CONVEYOR

While George Johnston, 38 years old of New Lenox was engaged in unloading a carload of coal for the New Lenox Coal and Feed Co., with a conveyor Tuesday, he suffered very painful injuries to his right hand when he tried to dislodge a chunk of coal which had clogged the conveyor. The power on the conveyor had not been shut off and when the machine suddenly started Johnston's hand was caught. The little finger on the right hand was so badly mangled that it may have to be amputated at the first joint. In attempting to get out of the car the injured man fell and sustained injuries to his right foot. His cries attracted Mrs. Joseph Gregory residing in the old Kennedy place and she got aid to the injured man who was taken to the Silver Cross hospital by Sheldon Hauck proprietor of the coal concern.

NEW LENOX RNA TO HOLD INSTALLATION

The RNA of New Lenox will hold their annual installation of officers Jan. 12 in the home of Mrs. Josephine Sayers. A pot luck dinner will be served at noon. All members are urged to be present.

FIRE DAMAGES WM. BEHNKE FARM HOME

A fire of undiscovered origin burned the kitchen and roof of the Wm. Behnke home between Mokena and Tinley Park, last Saturday Jan. 1. The Tinley Park Fire Dept. neighbors and friends quickly responded and the fire was extinguished before much damage was done. The loss was covered by insurance.

Orland Boy War Casualty

Sgt. Arthur M. Kimmel, 59th Engineers Sep. Com. Co. Unit 2, becomes the first of Orland Park's fighting boys to make the supreme sacrifice for his country. The following telegram was received from the War Department on New Years Day by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kimmel of Orland Township:

"Sgt. Arthur M. Kimmel, killed in action while defending his country, on Dec. 24, 1943 at Cape Merkus, New Britain."

Sgt. Kimmel was one of the first from Orland to answer the call of his country, entering service on June 7, 1941. He has served overseas for over two years and recent letters indicate that he had seen continuous action in the toughest of the South Pacific Islands fighting. He would have been 25 years old the end of the month. The War Department message stated that a letter with details would follow.

The people of Orland Community bow their heads in respectful memory to Sgt. Kimmel, who has received the supreme accolade of Americanism, death in the Service of his Country, and extend their sympathy to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kimmel.

TO HOLD BAKERY SALE

The Methodist Women's Society of Christian Endeavor of Mokena will hold their monthly bakery sale Saturday, Jan. 15 at Cooper and Hostert's garage from 2 to 4.

EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

As an expression of appreciation for the recent improvements installed in the Methodist parsonage at New Lenox, the Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Otis and the WSCS will hold "Open House" Sunday afternoon from 2 til 5 o'clock and from 7 til 10 o'clock at night in the parsonage.

ANNUAL MEETING OF MOKENA CHURCH POSTPONED

The annual meeting of the Congregation of St. John's Evangelical church of Mokena which was scheduled for Jan. 3 was postponed one week due to the critical illness of the president Mr. Wm. Keuch.

OH! MAN! WOW! WHAT HAM!

Final arrangements have been made for the 2nd annual Baked Ham dinner to be served by the Tinley Park Methodist Men, Wednesday, Jan. 12 from 5 to 8 pm.

This dinner will be served by the men of the church. There will be plenty of good food, especially the ham which will be extra good. The men are anxious to serve this dinner to everyone and are planning to make it a pleasant evening for all who come.

Mokena PTA Will Conduct Quiz Program

Mrs. C. Rose, Pres. of the Mokena Parent Teachers' Association, announced that the organization will sponsor a quiz program at its next meeting, Jan. 25. Unlike the usual quiz program, the value of whose information is questionable, this one will deal with a subject which according to Dale Carnegie, is first in the mind of every person, his health.

"The recent enactment of the Grade A milk ordinance in Mokena having demonstrated the interest in health of the town's citizens, the PTA has decided to sponsor this open meeting to acquaint everyone with the importance of such an ordinance to his own health and that of his family. You are urged to attend and compete for a prize," said Mrs. Rose.

The entire community is invited to submit questions for the quiz and those submitting questions used during the program will be eligible for valuable prizes. The questions may be humorous or serious and should deal with some aspect of milk or general nutrition.

Besides the quiz program, two technicolor films will be shown. The entire program according to the PTA president, is in charge of Mr. R. H. Baron, milk sanitarian for Will County Public Health Dept., and Mrs. Helen Derr, nutritionist for the Dairy Council of the Tri Cities.

MOKENA RNA MEETS

The Mokena RNA camp members met at the home of Mrs. August Pfleger January 4th. Following the business session, cards were played and prizes were awarded to the winners. Lunch was served.

ORLAND HOME BUREAU HOLDS JAN. MEETING

The Orland Park Home Bureau members held their Jan. meeting Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Herman Gee. The Major lesson Understanding Yourself was presented by Mrs. Cornelius, the Cook County Home Advisor. Eight members and one guest were present. Our chairman Mrs. Emerson was not able to attend due to illness and the vice president Helen Lemke was not able to attend due to jury service. Our former chairman Mrs. O. Maue conducted the meeting.

Our guest Mrs. Fritz from the Wheeling unit gave a pep talk on enlarging our membership.

The next meeting will be Feb. 3 at the home of Mrs. Harry Pihl. This meeting will be an evening one and the subject will be Clothes to fit the Figure.

Mrs. Herman Gee, Pub. chair. Get your advance tickets now from any church member or at the Bettenhausen Hardware store. Tickets will also be sold at the door but to be sure of a meal, get your ticket now. You also can phone for them at Tinley Park 430 or 577.

Geo. Sangmeister Heads Frankfort Fire Dept. For 10th Year

At the last regular meeting of the Frankfort Fire Department an election of officers was held with the following results: Geo. Sangmeister was re-elected for the tenth consecutive year; Manson LaHue, vice president; Clarence Warning, Secretary, Ruben Borms Treasurer; Henry Luhring, Chief; Fred Kohl-hagen and Frank Eisenbrandt, assistants; Walter Bettenhausen, Sgt. at arms; Clark Bennett, Walter Harnack and Harold Scheer, trustees. More letters of thanks for Christmas gifts received from service men were read at the meeting. It was decided to purchase another service flag for Roy Stellwagen latest member of the department to leave for the armed forces.

The priority for the purchase of 500 feet of hose was received. The department is now trying to secure a battery charger which at the present time is unobtainable. The old one was lost when sent away for repairs. Because of the infrequent use of the engine the battery discharges and it is of utmost importance to keep the battery, at full charge for quick starting. Any person knowing where a charger may be obtained is asked to notify Mr. Sangmeister.

WILL COUNTY FREE OF RURAL CRIME SAYS STATE'S ATTORNEY JAMES E. BURKE

The year 1943 saw the achievement of a long-sought goal in Will county, the complete elimination of rural crime, State's Attorney James E. Burke pointed out yesterday in a year-end statement.

"It isn't so long ago that farmers of Will county had the worry of making special efforts to protect their stock and property against the depredations of thieves. Several murders were committed. Other crimes of violence were noted," Burke recalled.

"But all this is now at an end. Farmers who are doing their utmost in the present national crisis can concentrate on production without worrying about crime."

When State's Attorney Burke assumed office for the first time in 1936, rural crime was very prevalent. Cattle rustling by organized gangs was but one of the problems.

By careful attention to the problem, and effective efforts with the cooperation of the F-Man organization and other authorities, these conditions have now been eliminated.

The wiping out of rural crime is an achievement of which we can be really very proud, State's Attorney Burke declared.

"And for the new year," Burke promised, "we will continue to keep the county clean of crime, by constant vigilance and with the effective assistance of the F-Men."

"There was no case of rural crime in 1943, and there will be none in 1944, if human agency can prevent it. We are pledged to this accomplishment."

Mokena Baby First 1944 Arrival In Silver Cross

The first 1944 baby born in the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet was a son born at 5:55 o'clock Saturday morning to Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Muehler of Mokena. This is the first child in the W. A. Muehler family. He has been named Mark.

The mother was the former Gertrude Sippel of Mokena. Young Mark received a $25 war bond, a ring from a Joliet jewelry store and in addition was given 12 cans of baby food by a Joliet store.

WILLIS MURDOCK NAMED WILL CO. TUBERCULOSIS DRIVE CHAIRMAN

Mr. Wm. E. Fay, State Chairman of the Illinois Drive against Infantile Paralysis, today announced the appointment of Mr. Willis J. Murdock, District Manager of the Western United Gas and Electric Co. as Will County chairman for 1944.

Mr. Murdock, long active in Civic affairs, accepted the chairmanship and stated:

"With the co-operation of every one in the county for such a worthwhile cause, we are certain that the drive will be a huge success, without too much of a burden on any of the people."

As you know, one half of the money raised will be used within this territory for hospitalization, nursing, medical and surgical care, including braces, shoes and crutches for Infantile Paralysis victims. The other half of the fund raised goes directly to the National Foundation, for use in continuous research on improved methods of care and the never ending search for a preventive.

This year, more than ever before the need is great, due to the recent epidemic in this area.

The drive will start on Jan. 14 and continue through Jan. 30. The organization is to be perfected and committees will be announced as appointed.

WILL COUNTY OFFICIALS TO DISCUSS COOK COUNTY ASSESSED VALUATION

Everett J. Cooper, Village Clerk, Mokena has received the following letter from C. H. Peterson and Martin P. Gleason of the Will Co. Township Officials Association:

Recent action by the Cook County Assessor in fixing 1943 assessed valuations at 100 percent threatens to cause much difficulty to the taxing bodies and governing agencies of Ill. County Clerks will be unable to extend taxes, consequently tax collections will be delayed and public funds will not be available to carry on the functions of government.

You, as a township official, should be very much interested in hearing this problem thoroughly discussed. In furtherance of this thought, the Will Co. Township Officials Association has arranged to hear Eugene Maynard and Lynn A. Stiles, of the railroad and prop-

Lodge Vigorous Complaints With Village Board

The Mokena Village Board heard a rather startling report Tuesday night at their regular monthly meeting, when Alderman Carl Wolter member of the police regulations committee, stated that numerous complaints had been lodged with him by residents of the northwest side of Mokena about the shooting spree indulged in by boys ranging in age from 8 to 18 years.

Armed with air rifles and a 22 rifle these boys have been shooting indiscriminately at anything they might consider a target. Electric street light bulbs, window panes in the Immanuel Lutheran church and the St. John Evangelical church have been shot out. Glass bricks in the Illinois Bell Telephone building have also been peppered with shot.

George Marti reported that pigeons have been shot off the roof of a barn at his place.

Alderman Willard Marti declared that one of the boys came on his property with a shotgun and killed a rabbit sitting on a woodpile between the Marti and Harold Cooper homes. The shot from the two shot gun shells splattered against the buildings.

According to the village officials reports some of the parents of the boys appear indifferent as to what their children are doing, but it was pointed out that the matter is a serious one. A rifle shot carries a long way and if someone should be hit it would be not only bad, but also too late.

Mayor Harry F. Mall and the Village Board have requested The News-Bulletin to carry a warning to the parents of the boys most of whom are known and whose names were mentioned at the board meeting, that if any more complaints are received of similar offences as complained of, warrants will be issued and the offenders taken into custody. The village authorities declare this nuisance must be definitely stopped.

PUBLIC SERVICE ADV. MAN GOES TO WASHINGTON

J. R. Pershall, director of advertising, has been granted a leave of absence by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois in order to take a temporary assignment in Washington at the request of the War Department. His new assignment, the nature of which was not revealed, is his second civilian assignment in the War Department in the last year. Early in 1943 he served as civilian director of WAC recruiting for the sixth Service Command under Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurnand.

Associated with Public Service Company for the past twenty years, Mr. Pershall is well known in advertising circles having been a charter member and past president of the Public Utility Advertising Association. Wm. E. Pierce will be in charge of the company's advertising activities during Mr. Pershall's absence.

FARM LAND BOOM

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard will soon trot up to Capitol Hill with a proposed bill in his pocket to put an end to the farm land boom. He is keenly worried about speculation in farm properties, has made a couple of speeches on that subject, but has not disclosed the full extent of the penalties he will propose to stop land speculation.

His bill carries a tax of 90 per cent on profits from the sale of farms held less than two years. In other words, if a farm is bought and then sold again in a few months, the deal is obviously for speculation, not for farm production, and the profit would be practically confiscated by the proposed tax.

Farm sales are so heavy that, if the present trend continues, they will surpass those of 1919-20, which was a record year. Iowa farm land, for example, is bringing $225 an acre.

Wickard has evidence indicating that the men engaged in this speculative buying are not farmers, and most of them are not even residents of farm areas. They are investment houses and insurance companies, who have money lying around loose and think they can make a killing, as they did in World War I.

The record of their speculation in that period is still written black on the pages of farm history. It is seen every time AAA makes benefit payments, for the largest checks in many states go, not to individual farmers, but to insurance companies and banks which have bought land or taken it over by foreclosing mortgages.

Wickard is prepared for opposition to his bill. However, the opposition will come, not from farm elements, but from the speculators, and also from Wall street brokers who fear that the next move might be a capital-gains tax on stock-market operations.

ELK HILLS BOILS

Latest developments in the Elk Hills oil controversy are known only to those who can see the inner workings of the cabinet.

Attorney General Biddle was expected to denounce the navy's contract with Standard Oil of California as illegal. The reason he didn't is that two cabinet colleagues got next to him and changed his tune.

Experts in the justice department have declared the contract definitely illegal, and passed their findings along to Biddle. Biddle, in turn, was expected to tell the house naval affairs committee the same thing, with the result that congress would undoubtedly recommend condemnation. Thus, Standard of California would relinquish all the property to the government.

But when Biddle appeared before the committee, he pulled his punches. Instead of declaring the contract illegal, he merely stated that he had "grave doubts" about it.

The committee was expecting a forthright statement. Even its chairman, Congressman Vinson of Georgia, who is very close to navy officials, privately favors condemnation.

Secret of what happened is this. Two cabinet colleagues got hold of Biddle's coattails. One was Secretary of the Navy Knox, who was responsible for the contract in the first place; the other was Harold Ickes, whose Petroleum administration is headed by a Standard Oil of California executive.

The fight is not over. Look for fireworks in public hearings before the committee next month.

SUBSIDY ISSUE POSTPONED

The 9-8 vote by which the Bankhead anti-subsidy bill was defeated in the senate banking and currency committee came as a surprise to insiders.

When they first took it up behind closed doors, most members of the committee figured that the bill would be reported out favorably and that Roosevelt would suffer a resounding defeat on subsidies. As it turned out, the deciding vote for subsidies was cast by Republican Senator Joseph Ball of Minnesota, whom Bankhead supporters considered in their anti-subsidy camp.

Terrific pressure had been exerted on Ball by some of the big dairy interests in his state. However, the young Minnesotan is a fearless statesman who believes in putting the interests of the nation and of the majority of the people over special or state interests. He not only voted against the inflationary Bankhead bill, but also against the Taft compromise which was licked by a lopsided vote.

TIP ON PEACE RUMORS

Note to New York stock brokers: When you get panicky over peace rumors, read the following words of Col. N. B. Briscoe, commanding officer at Fort Knox, Ky.:

"There is much talk of early peace. If you were in a poker game, consider when you would like the game to end. Obviously that would be when you had all the chips in front of you. The Germans and the Japanese would be greatly pleased to make peace now while they hold capital."

Russians Push West as Winter Sets In

With their great ally winter now increasing in strength and ferocity daily, the Russians have begun new drives to crush the Nazi invader. A full-scale push toward Rumania was begun at (1) Cherkassy. At Kiev (2) a fierce Nazi counterattack failed with heavy losses. Map shows the line of furthest German advance on July 12 and indicates the approximate present front.

JESUS BUSY WITH HIS MINISTRY OF LOVE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:32-45.
GOLDEN TEXT—I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.—John 9:4.

Jesus said that He "must work the works of him that sent him" (John 9:4). And so we find Him going straightway about His Father's business. It is a good example He has set for us.

What He did and how He did it will give us many lessons which we may apply to our service. We cannot do exactly what He did, but in His power we may do mighty works.

We find our Lord doing four important things—

I. Healing (vv. 32-34).

We will do well to include verses 29-31 in our thinking, for there we find our Lord tenderly sharing the sorrow of the home of a friend. One can picture the anxious hush that hovered over the home as distressed relatives and friends sought to alleviate the suffering of the one with a fever. They knew the possibility of a serious outcome of the illness. Many of us have gone through that dark valley. All at once there was new hope, and soon there was joy. Jesus had come and had brought healing. Many of us have also had that blessed experience.

Christianity is not a selfish faith, if it follows its Lord. We see in verses 32 to 34 that all the city came to His door with the diseased and demon-possessed, and He healed them all.

The account of the kindly and intelligent care of the sick is written large on the pages of the history of the Christian church. We do not have His divine touch of immediate healing, but we may have His compassion which served the multitude with tenderness and kindness.

II. Praying (vv. 35-37).

The Son of God sought out a place and a time for prayer communion with His Father. How often we who profess to follow Him fail to pray at all. Certainly we need the grace and power that prayer can bring far more than Jesus did. But, we say, we are so busy. So was He. We are tired. So was He. People will not let us alone. They also followed Him. We make excuses, but we have no real reasons for our unfortunate delinquency.

All men were seeking Him (v. 37), but still He took the needed time to pray. It has been said that "if you are too busy to pray, you are busier than God ever intended you to be."

When His disciples wanted Him, they had to look for Him in the place of prayer, Christian workers and pastors, do people find us there?

III. Preaching (vv. 38, 39).

Jesus said, "Let us go . . . that I may preach . . . for therefore came I forth." It bears repetition that while Jesus did many miracles (and not for a moment would we detract from their worth and glory), yet He repeatedly, by word and act, emphasized the importance of preaching.

Foolish though it may seem to the natural man (I Cor. 1:18-25), preaching the gospel in the power of the Holy Spirit is now, as it has been through the centuries, God's chosen means of accomplishing His purpose. What a pity that churches and pastors are forsaking it for book reviews, dramas, social hours, forums, and what not!

God give us a revival of great, humble, and fearless preaching of the Word!

IV. Cleansing (vv. 40-45).

There is a sense in which the cleansing of the leper was another act of healing, but leprosy is such a striking type of sin that the incident calls for special consideration.

Leprosy is like sin in that it is a destructive malady that pursues its insidious way without revealing its true nature until it is far advanced. It renders a man unclean, loathsome to himself and dangerous to others. At least such it was in the days of our Lord.

Was there then no hope for the leper? Yes: Jesus had come. The smitten man cried out, "If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." And Jesus said, "I will . . . and he was cleansed."

So may the sinner be cleansed, for "whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved" (Rom. 10:13). He will not turn the vilest of men away, for He came "to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10).

There is another important lesson here. The man who was cleansed disobeyed the instructions of Jesus (v. 44), with the result that the Lord's ministry in that place was greatly limited.

We should obey the commands of God without question, and without any deviation from them. Disobedience, even though it be by reason of great joy and enthusiasm, results in confusion. Our Lord knows exactly what should be done in a particular place at a certain time. When He guides, we should conform—for our own good and His glory.

ABOUT

Crude, or natural, rubber has been defined as a substance found as liquid latex in many types of trees and plants and being characterized by the physical qualities of stretch, bounce, and impermeability to water.

In 1939 crude rubber was the most important single commodity imported into the United States on a dollar basis. Gross imports then were 499,616 long tons, valued at $178,489,142.

A small test plot of land in a Pacific Coast experimental project last year produced at the rate of 50 pounds of rubber per acre from Russian dandelion.

BLACK SOMBRERO

by CLIFFORD KNIGHT

Elsa Chatfield, Hollywood artist, is disheveled by her Aunt Kitty, who died from an overdose of morphine. She and Rogers and Barry Madison, detectives, go to Mazatlan, Mexico, to solve what they believe to be Kitty Chatfield's murder. On arriving they find that Elsa's party had preceded them by plane. During a fiesta at the ranch of Sam Chatfield (Elsa's father) James Chesebro is murdered. Later while on a fishing trip for marlin, Chatfield is playing the swordfish when his swivel chair breaks. He topples out, the marlin rushes him and drives his sword through his body. Rogers gives a detailed account of the tragedy at sea to Lombardo, Mexican chief of police.

CHAPTER XV

"I'm sorry, Senor Lombardo," said Dwight in English. "We are late, for the reason that we searched in vain for George Rumble."

"He won't be hard to find," I suggested. "He probably moved to another hotel."

For a moment no one said anything, then Rogers turned to Lombardo.

"This will interfere somewhat with your plans this evening, senor. But—perhaps we can go ahead with those of us who are here. I'm ready to be the first to put on the hat and walk to the room where Chesebro died."

There was a stir among us and we prepared to take up where we had left off the night Pedro fled.

"Where's the quirt?" inquired Rogers.

"Here," I said, picking it up from the table where it still lay beside Elsa's hat. I gave it to Rogers. "And now we need Rumble's black sombrero," I said, "but it's not here."

"Won't another do just as well?" suggested Reed Barton. He and I went out to the rack near the door. There were several hats there; none as large, however, as Rumble's huge black one. We settled upon one of straw. The head size was small, so that it perched on top of Rogers' rather large head as he began a slow, measured stride down the dim passageway to the door of the room, while Pedro from his station and the rest of us at vantage points looked on. Rogers opened the door and disappeared within the room. A moment later he emerged to learn the verdict which Pedro was quick to pronounce.

"No, sir; he is not the one," he said, his teeth chattering.

"Who's next?" inquired Rogers, extending the hat and quirt toward me. "Barry, you play the role next."

I took the hat gingerly and set it on top of my head, although it was a better fit for me than it had been for Rogers. I grasped the quirt firmly and with a slight sensation of cold playing down my backbone I began to walk along the passageway.

"Pedro!" exclaimed Lombardo. "Speak!"

My heart sank at the sound of the jefe's voice.

"He is not the man, sir," said Pedro in a voice that was little more than a whisper.

"You are sure?"

"Yes, sir."

With an audible sigh I removed the hat and handed it, together with the quirt to Dwight Nichols.

"You're next, Dwight, old man," I said lightly, although my voice sounded strained and unnatural in my own ears. He took them hesitantly, but before he could put on the hat, Margaret appeared at the end of the passageway. She halted abruptly at sight of us.

"Whatever are you doing?" she called. "Oh—" Her voice betrayed that she understood, and she moved slowly in our direction. "It's Dwight's turn, is it?"

"Yes, dear," Dwight replied soberly, putting on the hat.

The same hush descended upon us. There was the same suppressed breathing as Dwight moved slowly and deliberately past the place where Pedro crouched in his concealment, and on down toward the door.

Slowly he drew near the door; his hand was stretched out to touch the knob. There was a sudden movement in Pedro's place of concealment. Lombardo was alert to it instantly; he made as if to leap upon the man, then said sharply in Spanish, "What is it, Pedro?"

The sound of the jefe's voice startled Dwight. He turned about at the doorway and stood in an attitude of inquiry.

"Senor—" said Pedro hesitantly.

"What is it, Pedro?" demanded Lombardo sharply.

"He is the man, sir."

"This is the man you saw, Pedro?"

Margaret's fingers dug convulsively into the flesh of my arm; she caught her breath sharply.

"Yes, sir; he is the one," said Pedro.

Elsa joined us as we entered the living room. No one had spoken in the passageway after Pedro made his accusation.

"What's happened?" Elsa demanded of me.

"The pulque man has accused Dwight of killing Chesebro," I said.

A curious light flashed in Elsa's jewel gray eyes. She appeared not to have understood me. I repeated my statement. Dwight removed the sombrero and dropped it into a chair, the quirt he tossed upon the table.

"The man is simply mistaken, Senor Lombardo," Dwight said, his voice remaining calm despite the strain he obviously was under. "I can understand how I might be thought to be the man you're seeking. It was like this: The night Chesebro was murdered we were all here in this room. We had been talking over the death of Mr. Chatfield's sister in California. Professor Rogers had been conducting a sort of investigation into it."

Lombardo's eyebrows lifted eloquently, and he glanced at Rogers then at Doctor Cruz who were intent upon what Dwight was saying.

"When the gathering broke up to go outside and look on at the dances which were the evening's entertainment, I was, I'm sure, the last to leave this room. The quirt there"—he indicated the whip on the table—"interested me. I stopped to examine the carved knob. Someone entered the room at the far end there." He nodded in that direction.

"It was a man—somebody dressed in white, like this man. A servant, I thought; I paid no attention to him. I put the whip down and went out into the hall, thinking to go out by the front door. The rack there with its many hats attracted me."

Dwight paused in his recital; he licked his dry lips and tugged at his collar, which seemed tight about his neck. He went on:

"It's curious the little mental quirks we get. Ever since I first saw Rumble wearing that black felt sombrero I've had a curiosity to put the hat on. A woman could understand that impulse, I suppose. And so I lifted the thing off the rack and tried it on. It was much lighter than I thought for. I took it off after a moment and put it back on the rack.

Rogers' hand suddenly was flung out to stop me.

"Now, then," he summed up, "I saw somebody who could easily have been this man, Pedro, while I was examining the quirt in the living room. Whether or not he followed me to the living room door where he could have seen me trying on Rumble's hat, I don't know. I believe that he did. So it is easy to see how the man could have been misled. He is mistaken in his identification."

"Pedro, you have made a mistake," Lombardo said in Spanish, turning belligerently upon the unhappy pulque seller.

"No, sir; he is the man—"

"We go now," said Lombardo. "My humble apologies, señoras and señores."

Later on that evening Rogers and I stood on the Street of the High Waves near the Belmar Hotel. Reed Barton had stayed behind at the rancho to talk with Elsa. The others had come down town. Margaret and Dwight went out to the yacht saying that the launch would be at the wharf for us whenever we wanted it.

"Let's look about a bit," Rogers said. "If Rumble is in town he'll be loafing on the streets or in the bars. It shouldn't be hard to find him in Mazatlan."

We went once more into the hotel and, not finding him, came out again. We walked to the plaza and around it. The evening throng was beginning to thin out. Nowhere was there any sight of the huge black sombrero or gaudy clothes he wore.

"He can be around, Hunt," I said, "and still elude us. Mazatlan is a fair-sized little city; there must be many places of concealment."

"Why should he be in hiding?" Rogers demanded.

"I don't mean that he intentionally is avoiding us."

"Yes, I know how you meant it. But he should be hunting us, Barry, instead. That was a broad insinuation he made—that he knew something of interest to me in the death of Kitty Chatfield. If he meant it, this is the time for him to talk; so why isn't he trying to find us to tell what he knows?"

I had no answer for that. Indeed the more we talked the more hopelessly involved we seemed to become. Perhaps while we slept our subconscious monitors could sort over the many conflicting factors. I remarked as much to Rogers.

"Sleep not only knits up the ravelled sleeve of care but also straightens out many things. It's a fact," he commented. "Suppose we see if the launch still waits for us down at the wharf."

We set out to walk the comparatively short distance down the narrow twisting streets.

Rogers' hand suddenly was flung out to stop me. Two figures were idling under a street light a short distance from the end of the wharf; the rays of the light shone down upon a battered guitar which brown fingers were idly strumming.

"Our two mariachis," I said.

They observed our approach and called out to us: "Buenas noches, señores."

Rogers returned their greeting. It was not until then that I realized what had drawn his attention so forcibly to them. We walked up to them and halted. Rogers pointed to the sombrero which Felipe, the larger of the two, was wearing.

"Que es esto?" he asked.

"Es un sombrero, señor," was the reply.

"Yes, I know," Rogers continued in Spanish, "but whose hat is it?"

"It is the hat of the gentleman who wears the fine clothes, señor," was the astonishing reply.

"That's what I thought," said Rogers. "How do you happen to be wearing it tonight?"

"I found it, señor."

"Found it?"

"Oh, yes, señor. Come. I will show you the very spot where I found it this morning."

Wonderingly we fell in behind the two boys who plunged into a dark passageway which, as we walked, I discovered was leading us to the water's edge underneath the wharf. We were stumbling along in the gloom when Rogers took out a tiny pocket flashlight to guide our feet.

"What is that?" asked Pancho, the smaller, when the light cast its feeble rays into the darkness.

"A flashlight, Pancho," replied Rogers.

"I have never seen one so small, señor," the boy replied.

A few steps farther on and we came out upon the damp sand. Here Felipe asserted was the spot where he had found the black sombrero—the very spot, right on the sand beside this very piling.

"Was it in the water, Felipe?" inquired Rogers.

"No, sir, on the sand. The tide was out."

"Had it been in the water? Was it wet?"

"Yes, sir; I think it had floated on the water and been left by the tide on the sand."

"H-m-m!" Rogers' voice was tense. "I should like to have the sombrero, Felipe, to take with me."

"Yes, sir." The boy took it off and gave it to Rogers.

"I'll give you something," He fumbled in his pocket.

"I want nothing, sir; it is not my hat. It is the hat of your friend who wears the fine clothes. I could not find him today to give it back to him."

We walked back up to the end of the wharf where we parted with the pair. Rogers still fumbled in his pocket. Suddenly he held out the little flashlight.

"Let me give you this," he said, "for taking care of the hat."

With an exchange of buenas noches we separated, the boys lighting their way up the street with the aid of the newly acquired flashlight, and we walking out upon the deserted wharf to the landing where the launch was waiting for us.

We went silently down to the launch. Arturo, loafing in the seats, sprang up to help us.

"Are we the last ones to go aboard tonight, Arturo?" Rogers inquired with an effort at cheerfulness.

"Yes, sir; all are aboard now, except you two gentlemen. Mr. Nichols say wait for you, and I wait."

After some moments he stirred the engine into life and then cast off.

We moved slowly at first close alongside the wharf, pulling away only a little from the darker shadows. As we left the wharf's black edge and emerged into the area illumined somewhat by the lights on the wharf above us, the launch struck something in the water and careened slightly.

"What was that?" Rogers demanded.

"It is perhaps a log, sir," replied Arturo nonchalantly. "I hope it is not an alligator, the same being plentiful not far from here."

"It didn't feel like a log to me," Rogers retorted, peering over the side into the gloom. Something in his manner filled me with apprehension. He held up a shadowy hand to the pilot.

"Stop, Arturo; I want to see what that was."

The launch began to lose headway and soon we drifted. "We'll have to back up a few feet." The screw reversed and we began to move slowly backward.

SOME PHASES OF INFLATION

IN THESE DAYS of scarce home front commodities it is how much excess money we have with which to buy, not how or for what we received it, that creates the inflation danger.

We have made the war as expensive as has been possible. We encourage high prices by what is virtually a cost plus system that meant an additional profit on every additional dollar paid for ships, tanks, planes, guns or any other necessity of war. Such a method encouraged the employment of excess labor and created a manpower shortage. To be sure the excess profits earned by manufacturers were taken away as taxes with which to pay the excess costs. We have been but chasing a phantom around an ever-decreasing circle. When we reach the center, if we do, it means uncontrolled inflation.

Early in the war the President pronounced the Little Steel formula. He did not freeze wages but provided a maximum beyond which they were not to go. Every conceivable subterfuge has been resorted to in evading the terms of that edict and permitting the workers to secure increased sums in their pay envelopes. The work week has been lengthened and time and a half paid for anything over 40 hours. It meant excess earnings with which to bid for home front commodities that did not exist in sufficient quantities to meet all demands. It also meant added cost for war equipment which we must pay, or promise to pay. It constituted the major danger of inflation.

The Little Steel formula has been and is still being, strained at every point to meet the workers' contentions for more pay. With every increase comes more demand for home front commodities, which cannot be produced, and added war cost.

War time should be a time of sacrifice for those on the home front as it is for those on the battle fronts. It should not be made a time for the solution of so-called social problems and of increased profits and increased wages. As a nation we do not profit from an increased tax revenue resulting from an increased national income when that increased income merely represents an increased cost of those things we must buy. All we have accomplished is a heavy addition to the national indebtedness and an increased danger of utter financial demoralization through uncontrolled inflation. To have frozen both prices and labor right after Pearl Harbor should have prevented the inflation danger we now are facing but it would not have been a popular move.

WHAT WILL U. S. DO WITH WAR PLANTS?

OUR GENIAL OLD UNCLE SAM, whose only occupation for more than 150 years has been that of looking after and mildly regulating his ever-increasing number of nieces and nephews, has finally grown ambitious and gone into business in a big way. Today he owns one-fifth of all the manufacturing facilities of the nation; is operating directly or indirectly 1,500 of the country's largest plants, with a total investment in these business enterprises of more than 20 billion dollars.

Uncle Sam went into business as an emergency war measure to produce the needed equipment with which to defeat the Axis powers. What the nieces and nephews are now wondering about is what Uncle Sam is going to do with those 1,500 plants when the war is over. At Washington there is a group of theoretical economists who are surreptitiously planning to have him operate them as peace-time industries in competition with the privately owned plants of the nation. With no federal, state or local taxes to pay, with the taxpayers to make good on any loss that might be encountered, these theorists see an opportunity of making these plants the opening wedge to the establishment of that state socialistic system they are promoting.

Private enterprise that must pay the heavy taxes needed to pay off the war debt, that must make both ends meet if they are to continue to operate, could not meet that kind of competition. It would be but a short time before our Uncle Sam would be conducting the business of the nation. The day of business opportunity for us nieces and nephews would be over, we would have state socialism. If that is to be avoided it is time for congress to plan for the disposition of those 1,500 plants.

REMINISCING on the part of us oldsters may be monotonous to the youth of today but it does act as a governor that helps to keep the machinery of living from running at too fast a pace. In the same way the youth of today will have, in time, their influence on the conditions of the future.

THE GASOLINE SHORTAGE is the key that has unlocked for many of us the values, the convenience and our need of our home town stores.

Mythical George Spelvin Has Played 1500 Parts

No American actor has appeared in as many stage parts as the mythical George Spelvin, a name first used in 1907 on the program of "Brewster's Millions" as a pseudonym for an actor who played two roles, says Collier's. Both play and player were so successful that producers have employed the name ever since in their playbills for men portraying two or more characters.

By now, "George Spelvin" has probably played 1,500 parts and given 150,000 performances.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling, feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Greetings:
I imagine this will come as quite a surprise to you. It's been quite a long time since I last wrote to you and I've been to quite a few places, in and out of the states. That is one of the reasons I haven't written in so long.
I want to thank all of you responsible for sending me the Tinley Park Times every week and a box of toilet articles, cigarettes etc. every so often. They always seem to come just when I need them most and it sure cheers a fellow up to read all the town news and also the news from my old friends who are in the service too. I would appreciate it if you would change my mailing address to the Times to the one on the envelope.

Things have been happening quite rapidly to me lately. Was at Norfolk, Va. for a short while, then to Harvey Point, N. C. when I got the issue of the Times mentioning Ruth Ceithaml as being in the Marines tried to get to see her but got transferred again before I got the chance.

I am enclosing a picture of the band with which I play. In the picture we are playing a concert (swing) for our ship mates. We play for them three noons a week. There isn't much other entertainment and they really appreciate it. Am enclosing this picture to Church School 9:30 a. m. Percy L. Jochum, Gen. Supt. Mrs. Noble Terrell, Youth Supt. Mrs. Arthur J. Brandau, Supt. of Primary Dept. Sermon: "At The Cross Roads".

The long experiences of christian workers has convinced them that the first step in spiritual decay leading to loss of faith and love for God is neglect of the morning worship service of your church. As your pastor I admonish all of you to be faithful in your church attendance. There never was and never will be any real substitute for it.

It is very important that each teacher be present every Sunday, and on time, it has a helpful influence on the children. If a teacher is sure that they cannot attend it would be better to call the department Superintendent to arrange for the class.

The second annual baked ham dinner given by the Men's group Wednesday, January 12.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Sacrament" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 9.

The Golden Text was, "The bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world" (John 6: 33).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it" (Matt. 26: 26, 27).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The true sense is spiritually lost, if the sacrament is confined to the use of bread and wine. The disciples had eaten, yet Jesus prayed and gave them bread. This would have been foolish in a literal sense; but in its spiritual signification, it was natural and beautiful. Their bread indeed came down from heaven. It was the great truth of spiritual being, healing the sick and casting out error. Their Master had explained it all before, and now this bread was feeding and sustaining them. They had borne this bread from house to house, breaking (explaining) it to others, and now it comforted themselves" (pp. 32, 33).

FRANKFORT

Ada Lambrecht

Word was received here by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Haass of the approaching marriage of their nephew Lt. Darrell Haass to Miss Marb Alice Berry of Brandon, Fla., on Jan. 14. Lt. Haass' address is 311 8th St. Brandon, Fla. The young couple plan to visit at the Haass home while on their honeymoon.

Capt. Robert Mitchell will celebrate his 25th birthday anniversary, January 13. His address is Bomb Command Detachment, Westover Field, Mass.

Funeral services were conducted yesterday for Miss Bertha Sangemeister at the home of her brother Conrad Sangemeister and later at Frankfort Methodist church with the Rev. Rudolf Malek officiating. Miss Sangemeister was born in Green Garden township 67 years ago and lived in that community until 1925 when she came to Frankfort and lived with her widowed mother who preceded her in death. She was a patient at the Manton State Hospital for the past two years. Survivors are two brothers Conrad of Frankfort and Christ of Joliet and two sisters, Mrs. Lena Laun of Chicago and Mrs. Lizzie Klose of Mokena. Burial was in Rose Hill cemetery at Green Garden.

A Red Cross nutrition class will be organized here and will start about the middle of the month. Mrs. C. Rose of Mokena will be the instructor. Those interested in registering are asked to notify Mrs. Herbert Folkers, 2563 by Jan. 7.

Officers of Frankfort Unit of the Red Cross have made an appeal for more volunteers to work on dressings at the school auditorium.

Frankfort's quota has been increased in accordance with the increased number of casualties of the war. In an effort to arrange hours as convenient as possible for women to attend, Wednesday evening meetings will be held starting January 5, from 7 to 9 o'clock. The regular afternoon meetings will continue to be held at the school every Wednesday from 1 to 4 p. m. The need is urgent and a good attendance will be appreciated.

The next meeting of Frankfort Camp No. 6036, R.N.A. will be held at the village hall Thursday evening, Jan. 13. This meeting was postponed from Jan. 6th. Installation of officers will take place with Mrs. Walter Baumgartner as installing officer and Miss Dorothy Vollrath ceremonial marshal. The affair will start with a pot luck supper at 6:30 p. m.

From Our Church in North Africa
The year has rolled around again,
To Christmas Day once more;
And once again my greetings come
From a far distant shore.

For us no Christmas bells will ring
As in the days of yore;
No winter air will carols bring,
For we are here at war.

But in our hearts a dream there'll be,
Of Christmas far beyond the sea;
In homes where peace and good will reign
Where soon we hope to be again.

As Shepherds watched that holy night,
Their flocks in yonder land,
We too shall watch and pray to-night
For tidings of good will to man.

For peace and good will must return

To every home and land;
And war shall evermore be spurned
For brother love of man.

So greetings now to you I send,
From far across the sea;
That peace and good will shall be
yours,
This holy Christmas eve.

—From a special Christmas leaflet of the Church in North Africa, sent by Pvt. Ralph Tilsy to
Mrs. Dora Tilsy.

Season's

Greetings

The year 1943 has seen the men and women of rural Will county make outstanding contributions in these crucial times.

It is pleasing to note again that there has not been a single crime against the farmer, his family or property which would add to the burden of rural Will county, by disturbing its people's peace of mind, or by hampering their production.

May the new year bring early peace, happiness and prosperity. For my part, I pledge continued vigilance in protecting the farmer and his family by combating crime and violence.

The Editor of the News-Bulletin was glad to receive the following letter:

December 24, 1943

Dear Sir:-

How is everybody at home? Fine I hope. This is the first time I have written to you for a long time. I am now a second class petty officer. I just made it a day before Christmas. A part of my address is changed, instead of Navy Activity 7 it is number 2(E). I am writing this kind of late but I want to wish everybody who reads this paper a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

I receive about one paper a month, and it seems nice to get it even coming so late. I just came back from leave about a month and a half ago and had a swell time. I was sure glad to see all my friends after being away over a year and a half. I am climbing up the ladder here in the Navy especially to make my dad and mother, sister and wife all proud of me.

Well I guess I will close now and good luck to you all.

All of us fellows in the service hope to be home next Christmas. Yours Truly, Walter Niedringhaus,

Flying Freight Trains

built with the speed of Electric Power

Fifteen months after the first of the C-54 series rolled off the assembly lines these super-cargo transports were flying the North Atlantic to England, the South Atlantic to India, the South Pacific to Australia, and the Northeast Pacific to Alaska, carrying vital war equipment and material to all battle fronts.

The speed with which these Skymasters made their appearance in all parts of the world is a tribute to the men and women producing these flying freight trains... a tribute also to Electric Power. For it takes this dynamic energy to make the thousands of parts... to drive the huge cranes and conveyors that bring the motors, bodies, wings and propellers together on the assembly line.

With cabin dimensions approximating the size of a standard box-car, the Skymaster carries a load of 20,000 pounds on ocean hops and considerably more on shorter trips.

Electric Power supplies the air pressure for the paint-sprayers as well as for the water-fall in the spray booth. The water, forced against a screen in the back, creates a vacuum which carries away vapors and excess paint.

Part of the heat-treating process given many parts of the giant C-54 "Skymaster" plane. Scene above shows basket of parts being lowered into quenching oil after removal from electric vertical-type furnace.

These giant Skymasters are in volume production at the aircraft plant here in Northern Illinois. Maintaining a constant flow of Electric Power to this gigantic plant is one of our wartime assignments from Uncle Sam.

Electricity has gone to war — don't waste it!

The following letter dated Dec. 14, 1943 and sent to Mrs. Herman Nicolai chairman, for the servicemen treats of the Womens Aid of the Christ Lutheran Church:

I received your wonderful package and was very glad to know that the folks back home still think of me. I thank you all very much for what you have sent. It was very good. I am now working on KP now and like it very well, but I expect to go into the hospital work soon. So now closing and thanking you again for what you have sent.

Yours truly,
Pvt. Wm. G. Schackow, Camp McCoy, Wis.

This letter comes from somewhere in North Africa dated Nov. 12, 1943:

Ladies Aid, Christ Luth. Church:
I wish to thank you for the candy and cookies you sent me for my birthday. It was late but it was the first package I received since I have been overseas. It sure tasted good and the other fellows said it was swell. It's not very easy to write by candle light so I will cut this short. Thanks again Mrs. Nicolai and Ladies for the swell package.

Sincerely yours,
Pfc. Art Uthe

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:
I received your Christmas package yesterday and thanks for it. I can't remember when I last had marshmallows. It is winter here now there is snow on the mountain tops but the vegetation is green. Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all. Cheerio.

Ralph Tilsy, North Africa
Monday, Dec. 27, 1943

Dear Ladies:
Your package along with several others plus many Yuletide cards was proof enough that the folks back home are thinking and pulling for us. We almost had a white Christmas this year. Instead of snow we had ice which made air travel impractical. Several flights had been scheduled to various parts of the country to take fellows and WACs home but could not take off. Thanks so much for all the things which your organization has done.

Sincerely,
Clarence Creer, Grenada, Miss.

Dec. 26-1943

Mrs. H. Kruspe:
Just a line to let you know I received that swell Christmas box and that it was well received. I was sure surprised in receiving that box because my parents have moved out of Orland. So you see I never expected a box. I also receive the Orland paper which I look forward too. It helps you keep up with your friends. So thanks for everything.

Sincerely,
John Heim, Somewhere in Tenn.

Dec. 24, 1943

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:
Received your package and was very glad to get it. You know things are pretty hard to get here. So I thank you and all the boys with me thank you. I never thought I would get a package from you but I thank you from the bottom of my heart.

Always yours,
(Casey) Cornelious Wydeveld,
North Africa.
P.S. Merry Xmas and Happy New Year to all.

Mokena

IN MEMORIAM

SPIESS - Elizabeth Emly, nee Hewson.

In loving memory of my dear mother who passed away six years ago on January 11, 1938.

Daughter, Olive R. Kohl

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my appreciation and thanks to the Mokena Fire Department, and all others who helped fight the fire at my home. I also sincerely thank the Red Cross for their fine aid.

Mrs. Maxine Estaronnie

Mrs. Maxine Estaronnie whose home was recently destroyed by fire, left last Thursday for South Dakota to stay with her mother for awhile.

Word comes from Camp Wolters, in Texas, that Pvt. Kenneth Benson, aged 18 years, son of Mrs. Ida Benson has arrived at the Infantry Replacement Training Center there where he has begun his basic training as an infantryman. He has been assigned to a battalion stressing rifle.

At the San Antonio Aviation Cadet Center in Texas, Dean Emil Rueckert is preflight training. The future pilots receive nine weeks of instruction at that Center, learning the fundamentals necessary for actual flight training in primary, basic and advanced schools. They are prepared physically and mentally to attain their common goal, the silver wings of Army Air Forces pilots.

The Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service will meet in the home of Mrs. Harold Cooper, Thursday afternoon Jan. 13. There will be an election of officers.

Mr. Wm. Keuch formerly of this territory is seriously ill with pneumonia in St. Francis hospital in Blue Island.

Geo. D. Lauffer, 26, son of Mrs. Florence Steele, Mokena has been named honor man of his company upon completion of recruit training at the U. S. Naval Training station at Farragut, Idaho.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hall and family have moved into the old Royal Blue store building.

Before entering the Navy Lauffer was employed in an ordnance plant and prior to that worked in a grain elevator. He attended high school at Mokena and Joliet, where he was active in sports, winning 6 letters in basketball, baseball and football. Later he studied extension courses from the University of Chicago.

Lauffer was chosen honor man on the basis of excellent averages in the many phases of the recruit training program. As athletic manager he directed his company's sports program.

After a 15 day recruit leave he hopes to qualify for training at a radio technician school.

Dear Bill:

It sure is swell when Tuesday comes around for that is the day the Bulletin arrives. I always look forward to reading all the news about home town folks. You are sure doing a grand job for us fellows in the service as it sure means a lot to us to hear what's going on in the old home town.

I'm working in a Ship Repair unit repairing ships here in the Navy yards and I like my work very much. Sorry I can't tell you more about it.

Thanking you again and wishing you a very Prosperous New Year.

Yours,
John P. Marti

WOMEN'S SERVICE CLUB News
by Mrs. Leslie Clark

The regular meeting of the Mokena Women's Service club will be held on Monday evening, Jan. 10 at 8 o'clock in the school. All members are asked to make a special effort to attend. Officers for the coming year are to be elected.

A. S. Geo. Lauffer is enjoying a 10 day leave at home. He is stationed at Camp Hill, Farragut, Idaho.

Pvt. Phillip Hacker spent the weekend at home.

Pvt. John Jahnke also spent the New Year weekend at home.

The following letters have been received from our boys overseas:

The first one is from Italy.

Dear Friends:
Thank you very much for the nice Christmas package which arrived in the best of condition.

Every article in the box will be useful just as they were back last Christmas when I was back in the good old USA. You people at home sure keep the postal dept. busy. The men are almost all receiving packages from home and those who don't, get their share of the others goodies. Even the Italian people, mostly children get a taste of things from the states.

It is pitiful to see how hungry and how poorly clothed some of these people are. But there is nothing a person can do for them just now. It is impossible to judge the age of even a child because the hardships of war have aged them so. Most of them are just beginning to realize what real independence means. Last week, some people near our camp butchered a hog and they asked one of our Italian speaking soldiers if we were going to take part of it away from them. They were very pleased to learn that the Americans don't do such things.

We have seen some action against aircraft and have managed to come out of it with the score highly in our favor. I am glad the people at home don't know the fear the people in this country have in their hearts during an air raid.

Thanks again for the gifts. Although this letter may reach you after the Holidays I wish you Season's Greetings.

Sincerely yours,
Sherwin Liess

And this one is from England.

Dear Friends:
I am indeed most grateful to you for the very fine Christmas package which I received from the good people of Mokena. The selection of articles is superb, the answer to a service man's wishes and desires.

It might interest you to know that there are only a few fellows out of the group I live with who are fortunate enough to come from communities which remember their men at the holiday season. Hats off to the small communities and the good people of Mokena.

My thoughts are with you this Christmas season with the one wish that Peace might reign over the world when the Christmas season for 1944 makes its appearance on the tables of time.

Christmas in England will bear some of the marks of the announcement which we hear every morning "Blackout is now in Effect". It seems that a certain amount of the Christmas spirit has also been blacked out.

Best wishes to all and many thanks for the very fine gifts.

Very truly,
Wilbur Mancke

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler spent New Year's Eve in Chicago at a show and enjoying the happy crowd on State street at midnight, the weather being ideal with out snow, being dry underfoot. Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dath have purchased the house on Front st., now occupied by the Schooling family.

"We wear white at night" is the subject of the January poster in the series "We work for Victory too," being distributed to more than 38,000 classrooms in the Illinois and Indiana territory of the Chicago Motor Club.

More than a million school children in this territory are urged to observe all traffic rules in an effort to reduce accidents, which not only are unnecessary and tragic but which divert time of doctors and nurses, and hospital space needed for the war emergency.

Instruction sheets accompanying the poster help teachers use the safety lessons to best advantage for various groups, such as pupils of different ages and grades and in rural and municipal areas.

THIS fighting game in the war now going on isn't handled entirely by athletes or famous competitors.

These have certainly done their share—but they are not the only ones in the big show.

A few days back I happened to run into a pair of old friends—"Blondie"

Saunders and "Rosie" O'Donnell, two of West Point's best football players.

When the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, "Blondie" and "Rosie," now a general and a colonel, happened to be in the air above Pearl Harbor when the Japs came over. They were up there shooting.

Later on they had an even greater record in the South Pacific. They did a few incredible things which they refused to talk about.

Both are stout believers in football and all other forms of competitive sport in the way of war training, whether it be land or sea or air-fortress or tank or bayonet.

But both believe that too little credit has been given to the clerks, the fellows from the farm, the kids from the city streets, the sporting unknowns who have been handling guns or planes over the South Pacific, or over Italy or Germany, with the coolness and courage no star could overmatch.

Most of these fellows have played games of some sort and have the right spirit of competition. But you never heard of them in sport.

The Bigger Job

"Some fellows," General ("Blondie") Saunders said, "have the impression that only great athletes have starred in this war. I believe in football and all body-contact sports. But I don't believe these men have deserved the credit the clerks and the soda-water jerkers and the mechanics and the farm kids have earned, who have gone through hell without batting an eyelash.

"They were not good football players or good basketball players or good baseball players or prize-ring fighters. They were just about 80 per cent of the kids of this country, so far as any headlines were concerned. But when the showdown came, along the ground or in the air, they were still America, willing to give their lives away to win."

"But don't you think," I asked Blondie and Rosie, "that football and other such man-to-man or body-pressure games are a big help?"

"There's no question about that," "Rosie" O'Donnell said. "In an all-out war you go all out. And that includes everybody. The trained competitors from sport have the call. They know what it means to be under fire, even college fire. But I've been in sports when kids, who never had this chance, were just as good as any great sporting star could possibly be. I've seen them look right in the face of death and even laugh. I've seen them look into almost certain human destruction and carry out their jobs to the finish."

How Youth Feels

The grip that football has on the youth of this country is an amazing thing. For football is also a grind and hard work. It isn't all glory.

For example, this last season, due largely to army regulations, Harvard, Boston college, Vanderbilt and Tennessee had to abandon football.

At least that was the early plan. It was the young football players, many of them minus coaches, who picked up and got going again, at least with informal games.

"At Ohio State," Paul Brown told me, "we had no navy trainees. We had to depend on 4-F's and kids under 18. Yet we had 45 men out to play one of the hardest schedules of the year. We finished with a total squad of 35 men. The kids knew in most cases there wasn't even an outside chance to win—not against such teams as the Seahawks, Purdue and Michigan. But they were keen to try it out.

"I think 1943 has been football's toughest year. We have the chance now to do some better matching for 1944—a chance we never had this last season. I think you will see games much more evenly played, just as Ohio State and Illinois were matched in one of the most exciting games of the season. There should be more civilian games. There will be quite enough service teams and navy trainee teams to build up first-class schedules all around the map."

Letter From India

Captain Zimmerman, who a year ago was sporting editor of the Los Angeles Times, writes from India: "We are a long way from home," he said, "but all service men I've seen are keen about getting the sporting news. We had the World Series replayed for us a day late over the air, but it would have been just as welcome a week or a month later. I have talked to many of them about the sporting programs back in the states, especially baseball and football. They are all for it.

SONJA HENIE, whose ice shows have thrilled millions, still is breaking records. It is likely that she will set an all-time mark for any performance by playing to 340,000 customers in the 20-day run at the Chicago Stadium.

And the petite skater has another record—one of which she is equally proud. To date she has sent four leading men to the armed forces. Stewart Raeburn, her first leading waltz performer, is a major in the Canadian army. Harrison Thompson is overseas with the signal corps. Gene Turner is in the air corps and Gerry Steffen is with the ski troopers. The latter performer is the son of the old lightweight champion, Willie Ritchie.

It should be reported, too, that Dan Topping, her husband, is in active service.

The 1943-44 Henie ice extravaganza has 60 girls and 30 boys. A year ago there were 38 men in the show, but 34 of that original group are now in the armed forces. Most of the boys in the show are less than 17 years, and in some instances it is necessary for the girls to dress and serve in boys' roles.

World Audience

Probably the most widely known woman athlete in history, Sonja's career has been remarkably successful. Through her ice shows millions of people have seen her in person. Millions more—in many parts of the world—have seen her in pictures.

The records show she had her share of disappointments before victory came her way. At the tender age of 10, Sonja competed in her first world championship, finishing last although she already was Norway's best. In 1924 she competed in her first Olympic championship, finishing eighth.

In the 1926 world's championship at Stockholm she was runner-up to Helmar Szabo, figure skater from Vienna. The following year Sonja replaced Szabo as champion after the latter had held the title four consecutive years. She was 13 when she won her first world's title and only 16 when she won her first Olympic crown at Oslo in 1928.

Sonja declares that the closest competition she ever had was during the 1936 Olympics at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, when she faced 23 of the world's ranking skaters from 12 countries. She finished the school figure competition with a narrow three-point margin over Cecilia Colledge, an exceptionally talented English star. A brilliant performance in the free skating enabled Sonja to beat Miss Colledge by the scant margin of 424.5 points to 418.1.

Royal Welcome

A week later she competed in the tenth world's championship in Paris, where 16,000 spectators jammed the indoor sports palace to see the twinkling Norwegian star skate to an easy victory over her 15 rivals.

King Haakon VII of Norway witnessed her 1928 victory and became one of her most ardent "fans." It was through him that she was made Knight of the Order of St. Olaf—one of the few women ever to be honored in such manner.

Spills are an inevitable part of ice skating—and Sonja has had her share of them. Her most embarrassing tumbles were taken during a performance before King George and Queen Mary of England. Badly flustered, she fell three times. It is an episode she would just as soon forget.

Thrifty Practices Save Feed in Winter

Hay and Silage Can Be Substituted for Grain

Much has been said this year about how to save dairy feed concentrates. E. J. Perry, extension dairyman at Rutgers university, suggests checking up on management methods once more to see that no valuable feed is wasted.

During the barn feeding period, he says, feed little or no grain to high testing breeds producing less than 15 pounds and to low testing breeds producing less than 10 pounds of milk daily, but feed all the hay and silage the animals will eat.

Limit the grain for dry cows, depending upon condition and fleshing of the individual. Prior to freshening, however, condition cows by feeding some grain if necessary.

Utilize supplemental pasture such as barley, rye, wheat, second growth clover, or second and third growth alfalfa for late fall or early spring pasture.

Grind or crush corn and cereal grains used in the grain mixture. A coarse to medium grind is preferred to finely ground material, especially where wheat is concerned.

Utilize miscellaneous forages, such as pumpkins or turnips, to replace roughages or grain for cows and growing heifers. One ton of pumpkins equals 400 pounds of mixed hay or 800 pounds of corn silage; one ton of turnips equals 500 pounds of mixed hay or 250 pounds of oats.

Changing Kind of Hay.

The choice of hay, and the manner of feeding are also important considerations. Even if your roughage is the best, it may not be doing a 100 per cent efficient job if your cows grow tired of it. When this happens, there should be changes made, a hay of a different plant source fed, if possible. Even changing the hay to an inferior quality will often cause production to pick up because the animals will eat more of it for a time. When consumption again decreases, another change can be made. With hay of poor quality, enough of it should be allowed so that the cows may have opportunity to pick over it.

Smaller amounts fed at more frequent intervals is also a good hay feeding policy. Some dairymen who have the highest producing herds feed hay four or five times a day.

Calf feeding hay should be bright, free from dust and leafy. One of the best calf hays is early cut clover—timothy mixed hay. The calves need the vitamins A and D that are in it to build strong healthy bodies.

Too many farmers call their poorest hay "bull hay." In light of the most recent information, bulls should get hay of equal quality with the milking herd. The production management of the herd, as far as freshening dates of the cattle are concerned, depends upon the bull.

Creosoting Posts Will Lengthen Their Service

Creosote treatment gives a much longer life to nondurable woods, recent tests of the durability of fence posts under Mississippi Delta conditions show. They were conducted by J. E. Davis of the U. of Illinois.

Creosote-treated posts were classed after 4½ years as either "sound" or "partly decayed but still serviceable." Among untreated posts, Osage orange was definitely superior to other varieties, but black locust and red mulberry had fairly satisfactory scores.

Second-growth bald cypress, honey locust and overcup oak showed serious decay, with from less than a half to less than one-fourth of the posts serviceable. An "unserviceable" post would break off.

Hill-grown black locust proved more durable than posts from trees that grew more rapidly in fertile Delta soil. There was little difference between posts cut in summer and in winter. The treated posts—including loblolly pine, shortleaf pine, southern cottonwood and sweet gum—were not considered worth testing without creosote treatment.

Rural Briefs

When a cow is bred to freshen every 12 months, she can be milked for 10 months and then given a dry period of six to eight weeks.

It is reported that a concentrated protein product, similar to dehydrated egg white, may be derived as a by-product of a new alcohol process in sufficient amount to supply 20 million adults.

Notes of a Newspaper Man:

"Dear Walter Winchell," affectionately writes Vivian Gardner of Dayton, Ohio, "I noted on the cover flap of Bob Casey's book that you made claim to his famous saying about newspaper men being such interesting people. I've written Bob's publishers, enclosing an item from your column in the Wisconsin News (Milwaukee) back in 1935 or '36. I've carried it all that time. To quote your column, you distinctly paraphrased: 'We always liked Bob Casey's parody on the cliché: "It must be swell being a newspaperman—you meet so many interesting people." Casey, a big-time Chicago scribe, says: "It's nice being in the newspaper business where you meet so many interesting people—because they're in it!"' To this you added Jimmy Cannon's snapper. So I've asked the publisher just when you claimed it as original. I'm a former staffer on the Wisconsin News and am here writing for an Air Force technical mag. This is another time you've caught a heckler looking sappy."

A recent issue of Life has an engrossing essay by their correspondent, Carl Mydans, who just returned from Japan. One observation in it deserves repetition: "Despite the Jap propagandists' new respect for America's power, they temper their warnings about it with encouraging news of America's internal problems. We who have been away for two years can tell you all about the zoot suit riots, the coal strikes, the train wrecks and industrial sabotage, the race riots, the black markets, the successes of isolationist congressmen, the shabby politics, the grumbling under rationing." . . . In short—when Americans on the home front refuse to aid their country—they just aid their country's enemies. Yet some tell us we can separate domestic policies from foreign policies!

The Orchid Garden: Speaker Sam Rayburn's greatest speech, urging the Congress to fight for our nation, instead of for pressure groups, etc. We are pasting it on our heart . . . The film, "Voice in the Wind" . . . Esquire's 1944 Varga calendar plus the epics of Philip Stack . . . The new Latin Quarter show (via Our Girl Friday's endorsement) . . . Peter Donald's Mutual program—nostalgic nonsense.

New York Novelette: The current song hit, "Paper Doll," was written in 1922 by Johnny Black. He first played it for a publisher as his pet canary chirped along, perched on Johnny's shoulder . . . E. B. Marks was so impressed he bought the ditty. "Any tune so simple," he said, "that a bird can whistle should be a sensation" . . . But for some reason or other Mr. Marks never really plugged it and it perished . . . Johnny Black died soon after . . . The Mills Bros. heard a small-time cafe singer offer it this year . . . But the Marks firm had run out of copies, and none could be found . . . Until Tommy Lyman located an old copy in his trunk . . . The Mills freres then made a Decca recording of it, and "Paper Doll" was re-born . . . Over a million platters have been peddled to date plus 700,000 or more song copies . . . Mr. Marks then had to search for the author's survivors to pay the royalties . . . He finally located Johnny's father living on an old "Tobacco Road" farm . . . The 82-year-old father of Johnny Black, who died young and penniless, will realize $50,000 in royalties from "Paper Doll," which his boy wrote 21 years ago.

Many editorialists are pouting about the press relations fiasco at Cairo and Teheran. They have good reason to be irked by the bungling. But why allow such petty annoyances to smother the great significance of the momentous confabs? Why not devote more space to pointing out that the conferences marked the greatest political victory in history? They marked the birth of civilization's greatest dream—the hope for permanent peace. Isn't that worth more newsprint than the fact that an error was made in the release of the news?

Sounds in the Night: At Paris Qui Chante: "She didn't add any weight, she multiplied it!" . . . At Jimmy Dwyer's: "He has a face only a love could mother!" . . . At the Yacht Club: "I never feel my first dive frinks!" . . . In Duffy's Tavern: "Aren't you too old to believe in Sinatra Claus?" . . . At Jimmy Kelly's: "Weak? He wears suspenders to hold his shoulders on!" . . . In the Hurricane: "Falling in love is like falling downstairs."

This is why noncensorship drives newsboys nuts: British gazettes were not allowed to publish stories about the Cairo confab, taken from Reuters, the British news agency, or from the official version—but only from German broadcasts . . . The German broadcasts were based on the Reuters stories!

Note to those who pooh-pooh the value of propaganda: The Japs still haven't told their people about the Cairo accord for fear it might weaken their will to fight

Voodooism, Witchcraft Still Practiced in South

Voodoo worship and witchcraft, which were brought to this country by slaves of Africa and the Indies, still are alive in New Orleans. Brainy Negro men and women have set themselves up as "doctors" and "queens" of the voodoo order and have unscrupulously acquired fortunes from gullible colored people and lower-class whites.

Illegally operated in New Orleans are voodoo drug stores, selling scores of potions, charms, and oils which are concocted to bring good luck or drive away the evil spirits.

Wealthy white girls sometimes finance hysterical voodoo dances in hopes of winning back a lost husband or sweetheart.

Doughnuts As Invitations

Doughnuts serve as wedding invitations in some parts of Macedonia. Families of the bride and bridegroom have young boys distribute doughnuts to the townspeople.

Producing Helium

In the United States, one helium plant alone produces in about 23 hours the 416,000 cubic feet of this gas required to inflate a navy K-type blimp, an amount that would take several centuries to obtain from the wells of any other country.

For example, the famous gas well in Santenay, France, one of the best sources of helium outside of America, could not produce this quantity in less than 700 years.
